

Query

Author : George Dorner, Illinois

Categories : Growing Daffodils, Landscapes and Naturalized Daffodils

Date : June 29, 2008

Here's a query from Rob Berube of Rye, NY, rb101@comcast.net, pertaining to the Grow side of our interests. It is really a general gardening question with a daffodil twist. What advice do you have for Rob?

I'll collate any responses, or send just my own if there are no others, and forward the results back here and to Rob. Or, respond directly to Rob and mention that you saw this on Daffnet.

A friend locally did a similar project on a larger spread along a long driveway. He had about 3,000 poets - Pheasant's Eye - intermingled with yellow tulips. This made a stunning approach to his house for the early season. But the area was difficult to keep tidy and attractive after the spring season.

Thanks.

1) I have a triangle that measures 3' W one end 8-10'W on opposite end and 15-20'L. It sits between two roads that are part of a neighborhood commons and I want to fix it up and have a "sea of flowers" for April-Aug/Sept here in coastal NH (zone 5).

So picture this with a combination of Black Eyed Susans and Yellow Daffodils...Now what I need to figure out is: do I mix them up in compact form, or plant the daffodils in front and BE Susans in rear? What do you think would look better. Am concerned about health and appear of mixing them- Obviously, they will bloom at different times, why I thought I'd be ok to mix them.

Can you think of any other flowers/colors that are low enough 12-20" that would blend in well?

2) Can you give me 2-3 mail order houses you recommend I get my order in of Daffodils- should I do that now?

Thank You,

Rob

Rye

George Dorner

george@dorners.net

+==+==+==+==+==+== Anagram for Today +==+==+==+==+==+==+==+==+==+==

A TELEPHONE GIRL

repeating "hello"

+ = + = + = + = + = + = + = Anagram for Today + = + = + = + = + = + = + = + = + = + =

Domain Names

Ammonia Ends