

Ohio Snow .

Author : John McLennan, New Zealand

Categories : Bulb Information, Growing Daffodils, Hybridizer, Hybridizing, Seedling

Date : March 6, 2010

Is it still snowing in Ohio ??

I hope not -- we hope your weather is improving and spring is finally arriving , and that you all have some fine flowers for the shows .

OHIO SNOW was in Feilding at our bulb sales day -- catching most of us by surprise as we expected Spud to arrive with bulbs, not flowers .

Spud flowered these two flowers from bulbs imported from the U S A . The bulbs were potted when they arrived and grown on in a cool, shaded area and have been held for about 3 weeks in a cooler.

They were good, show quality blooms -- very clean white and good form. Spud would love to be on a plane taking them to Murphys for your show, -- however, not to be.

This variety has an interesting history, previously detailed on daffnet.

Spud Brogden sent this smart 2 W W to the States under seedling number: not surprisingly it soon achieved success on the show benches and particularly at an Ohio Show. It was subsequently named Ohio Snow and is still regularly exhibited.

Back in N Z, Spud lost his stock; saw how well it was doing Stateside and was keen to restock.

He asked me to thank those who had sent one of his children back home; they are enjoying being back in their raisers garden again and when fully acclimatised will be seen on Kiwi show benches.

If there is a moral to the story, surely it must be; " Give and thou shalt receive "

I'm sure it's not the first time we have heard of similar seedling loses and recovery.

Generosity with seedlings is frequently a great insurance policy.

Best wishes to all Northern growers and good luck for the growing and showing season.

Cheers

John